

My Idea of a Perfect Job

Everyone's idea of a perfect job is different, for some can be being a traffic police to owning your own franchise. For me, the perfect job would have to satisfy my every need. In order for my job to be "the perfect job", it will specifically include these areas. Each of these areas should be met to the last detail. The position that I will acquire, my responsibilities within my position, and last my benefits, which I will get.

A job that will Intel all of my following needs will probably be impossible to get , but some say " you never know". When in my opening paragraph I mentioned position, I think that it's self-explanatory. The position that I want would be someone with power. A position that everyone knows is a winner. A position would definitely be the big boss. A Chief of a huge company, like the Coe of Pepsi. I would like to be an owner of a Franchise. That's what most want, power and fame.

As a student goes to college and that person starts thinking that after school comes the real world. Then they think "responsibilities". Who wants it? The pressures, deadlines, and dealing with the commotions. My job will have no commotions, no deadlines, no pressures. Absolutely no telling me what to do. If anything, I would be the boss of bosses. My responsibility will have to not getting stressed out. Having this perfect job, I wouldn't mind coming to work 7 days a week.

In any good job one thing that comes along is benefits. As I start thinking of all the benefits that I can get, many images come to mind. The first would definitely be medical insurance, my medical insurance would be covered completely, that includes if I decide to get any plastic surgery. Other benefits will include, company cars the latest and most expensive models. I will get different cars of the latest model everyday. Company jets and planes will accommodate me, and any guest that I decide to bring along in any errands I have to do, this includes if I need to leave the country and go to France for the latest French dress that I want. The company that I will work for will have to give me a credit card for any of my expenses, this having to do with the company or personal usage. I will get paid vacations including all my expenses for a month, every six months. Every two weeks I will get a raise of 10,000 dollars.

All in all, it is unusual to get the perfect job. If there is that perfect job that I want it will have to meet all this requirements. I don't think I am asking for much; so I'm sure I'll get it. At least the job that I get will have some of these requirements.
